📖 Age Sensitivity   📊 Age Sensitivity Chart

Age Sensitivity

There are certain key Dewey ranges where titles with older copyrights are more likely to contain outdated/inaccurate information. This report identifies those Dewey ranges and shows you how many titles in your collection are outside the Acceptable Age span. The Acceptable Age span for each Dewey range is determined by the CREW (Continuous Review, Evaluation, and Weeding) method and other nationally recognized methods of collection maintenance. Titles with copyrights outside the Acceptable Age span should be reviewed to determine if the information they contain is still accurate. Click the link above to view a chart that illustrates this information.

Unrecognized and Missing Call Numbers   Unrecognized and Missing Publication Dates

Incomplete Records

These reports identify any record that we received with unrecognized or missing call numbers and unrecognized or missing publication dates. Click the links above to view these reports.

You can use the Unrecognized & Missing Call Numbers report to increase the success rate of your collection analysis. First, take a look at the call numbers to determine if any of their prefixes should have been identified using the standard or unique book categories or any of the advanced options. Write these prefixes down and click the Edit Profile & Rerun Analysis button at the bottom of this screen to return to the collection submission section. Enter this new information in the appropriate sections (all the information you entered previously will already appear on each screen). Then simply rerun your analysis – you don't need to resubmit your MARC records. You can continue to refine this information and rerun your analysis until you are happy with its success rate.

Linking Libraries & Academic Achievement

Information Power, a publication of the American Library Association and the Association for Educational Communications and Technology provides the foundation for the development of the Linking Libraries and Academic Achievement (LLAA) initiative. Information Power establishes national standards for student information literacy and outlines the role of the school library media center as a powerful and active partner in the school instructional program. Information literacy is the ability to effectively locate, use, and communicate information to demonstrate learning and to develop the skills needed for life-long learning.

The goal of this initiative is to provide guidance to school library media specialists in the development of best practices for teaching and learning. The resource documents identify skills that students need in order to be successful in meeting the Virginia Standards of Learning. It also provides strategies and activities that integrate technology into the curriculum and fosters the development of literacy skills that will enable students to become discriminating and efficient users of information.
